X-Cel Conservation Corps

Hard working X-Cel group

We've been working with X-Cel Conservation Corps, a Boston-based organization training young adults in the skills to obtain conservation-related jobs and to pass their high school equivalency exams. On our first work day in May, we removed invasive species at Ordway Park and then moved to Sawmill Brook Conservation Area. Our second work day in July was back at Sawmill Brook, where they immediately recognized their old friends glossy and common buckthorn. Our work together has been fun and productive.
